

Centralized control and detailed reporting of individual user access to sensitive Macola® data

Do you know which employees have access to your sensitive company data?

New PULSE Security software instantly displays a detailed report of Macola® Progression security access by:

- Software application (ex. sales reports, financial statements, etc.)
- User
- Macola® security group
- Macola® database
- User and database

PULSE Security allows you to analyze all aspects of your Macola® Progression security. Additionally, you can remove user data security access rights on your screen.

You now can quickly and easily determine if someone in the shipping department was accidentally granted access to your sensitive sales information.

The screenshot displays the PULSE Security software interface. The window title is "PULSE Security". The main menu includes "Settings", "Macola Installation", and "Demo data". The navigation tabs are "By Application", "By Group / Application", "By User / Application", "By Group / Company", "By User / Company", "Group Membership", and "Data Integrity". The "By User / Application" tab is selected. The interface features a tree view on the left with "Menu Text" and a table on the right. The table has columns for "Compa...", "User", "Group", "Company Name", "Menu", and "Access". The "Menu" and "Access" columns are circled in red. The "Sales History..." item in the tree view is also circled in red. The table contains the following data:
